

Qont launches national multi-trade service network across Australia

Qont has announced the launch of its national multi-trade service network, expanding access to essential trade services for businesses and households across Australia.

The new network brings together a growing national base of qualified trade partners and technicians, enabling customers to organise a broad mix of services through a single provider. Initial services include electrical, plumbing, HVAC, concrete, painting, glazing, solar installation and landscaping, with further trades expected to be introduced as the network expands.

The model has been developed to simplify how Australian customers organise essential trade work, reducing the need to coordinate multiple service providers while improving access to reliable trades and competitive service scheduling.

A Qont spokesperson said:

"We have years of experience in Australian communities, and calling, coordinating and working with ten or eleven different businesses just to find the best offers, times and trades is often a job no one wants to be doing for essential work.

"So we hire, partner and contract across Australia to make sure that when you need trade services, we already have the people ready and the deals in place to keep customers satisfied."

The multi-trade network is designed to support both commercial and residential customers, with particular focus on businesses that rely on dependable trades to maintain safe and efficient operations.

Customers can request quotes and submit service enquiries through Qont.com.au, where service availability can be confirmed across different regions.

The launch represents the first phase of Qont's national expansion strategy as the company continues to grow its partner network and service coverage throughout Australia.
